Questionable Research Practices. What are They and so should we worry?

Jesper Wiborg Schneider
(Aarhus)

The talk will introduce and discuss the concept of questionable research practices. We will discuss their alleged widespread use, the suggested reasons why, and the presumed effects they have on the science system, not least their role in the so-called replication crisis.

Examples will be given, and we will discuss suggested solutions to the challenges. The talk is based on this recent paper:
